More About Meters

Herbert Hoover

Rings the Bell

My Mississippi correspondent, Editor Edgar G. Harris of the West Point Times Leader, sends me another item about the progress of parking meters in the Deep South.

West Point, about Hope's size, already has parking meters; and now neighboring Aberdeen, population 4,500, is going to install them.

A clipping from the Aberdeen Examiner reports:

The meters will be put in July 1 on a six-month trial basis. Then the city will vote on whether to retain them.

Price is $64.50 per meter, and there will be 180 of them.

The Aberdeen Examiner crisply reported:

"Our people, in a poll conducted by the chamber of commerce, expressed themselves as favoring the meters, although there was vigorous opposition."

It had to happen sooner or later — and the blow-off came Thursday night in New York.

Herbert Hoover, only living ex-president, and one of the best-informed men on world affairs, made a speech in which he said the United Nations has got to be reorganized — leaving Russia out of it.

Or, if that can't be done, he added, then the UN is through; and "a definite new united front should be organized of those peoples who disavow Communism, who stand for morals and religion, and who love freedom."

Men of both parties in the congress quickly applauded Mr. Hoover's words. Said Senator George Democrat of Georgia:

"Ultimately will have to come to that. I have felt such a move is inevitable since Russia demonstrated that she will not keep her agreements."

And I heard one radio report — although there is no mention of it in current dispatches — that President Truman sent Mr. Hoover a telegram of congratulations.

The fact is, all Americans are united on the proposition that the UN shall either be made to do the job it was designed for or we'll abandon it and return to the old-style system of defensive alliances between individual nations.

Retention of the veto power has, in the case of Russia, wrecked the United Nations — and we have every reason to believe it was deliberate. She used the pace-machinery of the rest of the world to screen her own secret designs.

In the words of Hoover's speech:

"The Russians, since the days of Peter the Great, have grabbed territory 'like a burglar going down a hall.'"

It's time we heaved 'em out of a United Nations they never believed in anyway; and if the small fry don't want to go along on this new proposition we can get out ourselves and set up a dependable system of treaties with friendly powers.

Garden Clubs Start Work on Park Drive

Landscaping and beautification of Park Drive boulevard leading from the Spring Hill road to the main entrance gate of Fair Park will be a joint project between the Hope Federation of Garden Clubs and the City of Hope, it was announced today.

Planting of a mass of spring and summer flowers will begin Monday, May 1, it was decided at a recent meeting attended by representatives of the eight garden clubs and Mayor Lyle Brown.

Beautification of the boulevard, with its lighted "white way" will be an added attraction of interest to the many visitors to the park this summer and to out-of-town visitors attending the annual Third District Livestock Show scheduled Florist Dick Erwin will be in charge of the planting of the flowers beginning Monday. Anyone who has summer flowers suitable for transplanting and wishing to donate them to this project is urged to bring the plants to Fair Park by noon Monday.

Representatives of the garden clubs attending the meeting were: Mrs. Hollis Luck, Rose; Mrs. B. L. Rettig, Lilac; Mrs. Leo Robinson, Iris; Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr., Azalea; Mrs. Manuel Hamm, Jr., Wisteria; Mrs. L. Helms, Jr., Daffodil; Mrs. James Pilkinton, Gardenia; Mrs. L. D. Barnum, Camellia.

Mrs. Charles Wylie and Mrs. Franklin McLarty, officials of the Hope federation, also attended.

Oregon's population of deer, elk, antelope and bear is estimated by wildlife officials at 634,000.

Twisters Leave Eight Dead in 2-State Area

Stout winds toppled many trees in this section last night but no serious damage has been reported. Limbs littered Fair park and many of the city streets and a falling limb damaged the top of Winfred Huckabee's car on South Main street.

By The Associated Press

Eight persons — possibly more — died as savage tornadoes dipped over Oklahoma and West Texas yesterday and last night. The threat of more black funnels hung in leaden skies over both states.

A forecaster said late last night that conditions over the stricken areas are "just right" for more twisters. Oklahoma's forecast was for "strong, shifting" winds today and tonight.

Some 35 persons were injured seriously by the wrecking blasts of twisters which blew death and destruction in at least seven spots yesterday. In Texas, hail added its bombardment to the wind and swelled the damage toll.

Apparently the town which took the worst battering was Holdenville, in east central Oklahoma.

The Red Cross reported five dead and 100 injured there. News-men could account for only three dead and they said many persons had been taken to hospitals with only minor injuries.

Three members of one family died in the wreckage of their crumpled home at Clyde, Tex., 16 miles east of Abilene. Two or three other families were said to be missing late last night and at least five other persons were injured.

Eight miles to the east of Clyde another black funnel believed to be the same one, killed an elderly man and his wife at their home at Baird. The bodies of Steve Rogers, 63, and his wife, 67, were found late last night in a nearby orchard.

GOPs Call for Two-Party Cooperation

Washington, April 29 — (AP)—A new Republican call went out today for closer two-party cooperation on foreign affairs, as the slow-moving senate debate on a $3,372,450,000 foreign aid bill headed into its final days.

Senate GOP Leader Wherry of Nebraska said Republican chiefs should be invited to attend a scheduled closed-door conference Monday between Secretary of State Acheson and the senate foreign relations committee. Acheson is expected to discuss topics he will take up with the British and French foreign ministers at forthcoming meetings in London and Paris.

Wherry told a reporter he wouldn't press the point if committee members objected. Chairman Connally (D-Tex) objected.

Connally said the committee hasn't made any arrangements for outsiders to attend the session, adding that he feels GOP committee members are capable of representing minority sentiment.

It has Connally who succeeded yesterday in setting a target date for the end of the dragging foreign aid debate, after Wherry and Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois had tried and failed. At Connally's suggestion the senate agreed to a final vote on the bill next Friday at 1 p. m. (EST).

Hot Springs, April 29 — (AP)— The Garland county grand jury yesterday indicted Morris Hecht, Hot Springs attorney, on a charge of subornation of perjury in connection with a divorce case which aroused the wrath of the Arkansas Supreme court.

Hecht posted a $1,000 bond after a "true bill" was returned against him. "Subornation" means inducing someone else to commit perjury.

The divorce was that of Mary M. Oberstein against Eli E. Oberstein. Both are of New York and were divorced here in 1947 under the Arkansas 90-day residence law.

When the Arkansas Supreme court recently was called on to pass on a case growing out of the divorce it declared "contemptible fraud" had been practiced.

It asked the rules committee of the bar association to investigate Hecht's conduct in the matter.

Hecht has declared there was no wrong doing or unethical conduct on his part.

The grand jury also indicted Anna Cook of Hot Springs on a charge of perjury.

Because of sparse rainfall, nearly all of Utah's crops except winter wheat are irrigated.

Manager of Arlington Hotel Dies

Hot Springs, April 29 — (AP)—Sam William Grumbley, 72, resident manager of the Arlington hotel since it was built 25 years ago, died last night at a hospital here.

Mr. Grumbley came to Hot Springs 33 years ago and prior to his connection with the Arlington, was manager of the Marquette hotel here.

He leaves his wife.

Funeral services will be held here today.

Field May Be Cited for Contempt

Washington, April 29 — (AP)— Senate Communist investigators handled with care today a proposal that Frederick Vanderbilt Field be cited for contempt for refusing to answer their questions.

Senator Tydings (D-Md) said he won't take the lead in any such move against the reputed Communist millionaire. Other members of the senate foreign relations subcommittee headed by Tydings indicated they favor caution in seeking a citation against Field.

The senate subcommittee is looking into charges by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) that the state department harbors Communists and Red sympathizers.

When Field was before the committee under subpoena yesterday he flatly refused to say whether he ever has been a Communist. He also refused to come across with many other answers — generally on the ground his replies might incriminate him.

Committee Counsel Edward P. Morgan called Field's conduct "contemptuous" and formally asked the committee to consider citing Field for contempt of congress.

Reporters asked Tydings whether, as chairman of the committee, he intends to put the contempt issue officially before the committee in line with Morgan's request.

Tydings replied it will be "up to some other member of the committee" to make the first move. He said he has no intention of taking the lead.

Tydings added that does not mean he was expressing any opinion as to whether Field should be cited.

Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said at the hearing yesterday that he plans to seek action against Field. Later, however, he said he would wait for an opinion from the committee's lawyers as to whether there is legal ground for a contempt citation.

Casey Jones Day Observed in Tennessee

Jackson, Tenn., April 29 — (AP)— One million, six hundred thousand pictures of the hero of America's most famous railroad wreck went on sale here today.

For this is "Casey Jones Day" in Tennessee. And Casey, that fabulous engineer, is on a new three-cent stamp.

The stamp, sold here for the first time anywhere, is one of 12 special issues authorized this year by the postoffice department. It honors the nation's railroad engineers — with Casey as their symbol.

You've heard of Casey — everyone has. He was the hotshot engineer of his day. He died in the wreck of the "Cannonball Express" near Vaughn, Miss., 30 years ago Monday.

You probably thought he was a legend — like Paul Bunyan, the giant logger who could kill a pond of bullfrogs with a single shout, or smother a forest fire with a spurt of tobacco juice. But Casey was real.

The wreck that killed Casey was a piddling affair, however, by Bunyan standards. Casey was the only victim and died because he tried to brake it before the crash.

Ordinarily, such a minor wreck is worth maybe a couple of inches of type in your newspaper. But something about this one caught the public fancy.

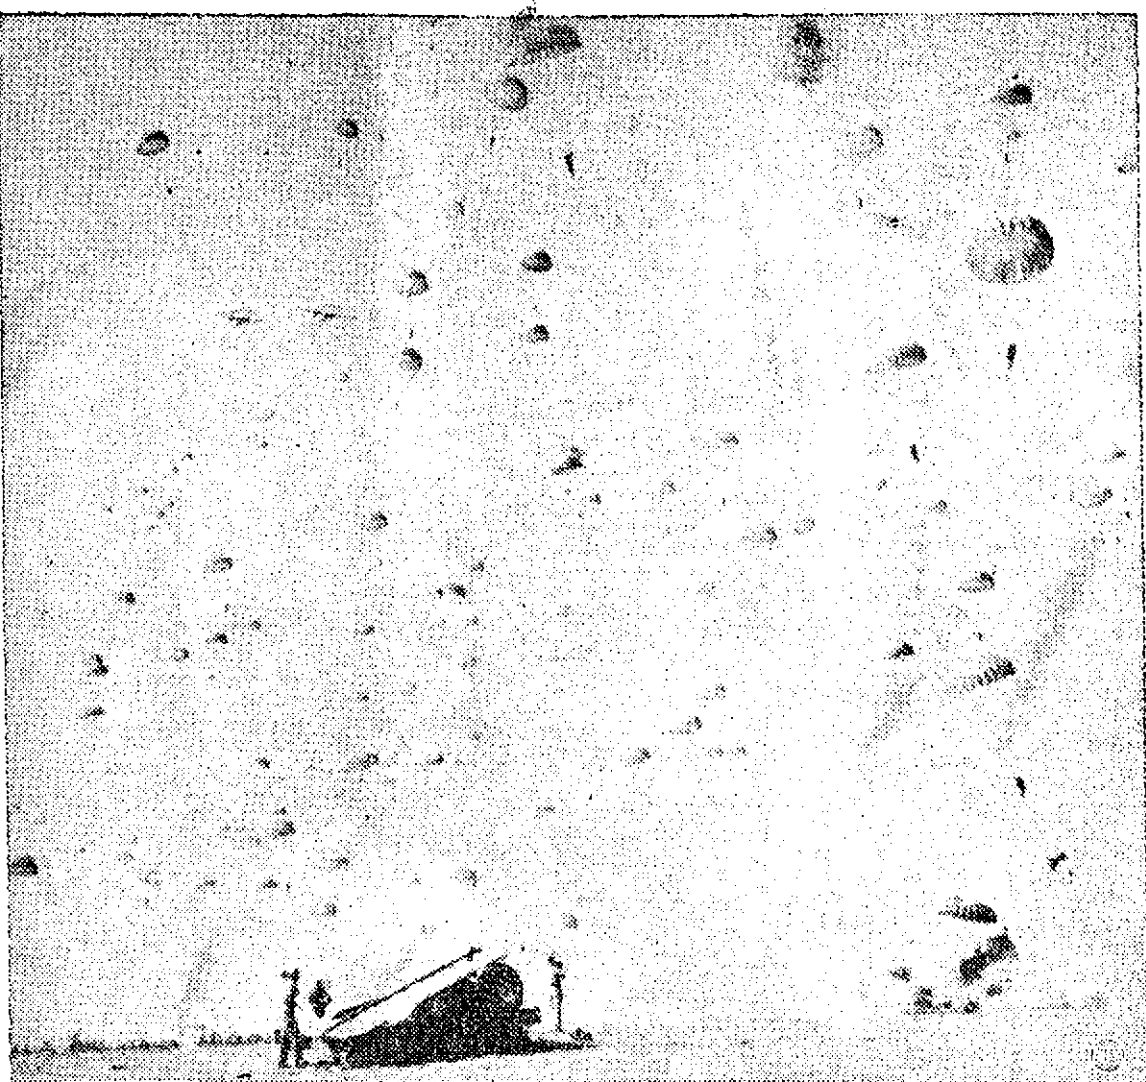

Legends about it grew. A Negro fireman set the words to a coal-heaver chant and the song was born that swept Casey to immortality.

About All You Have to Do to Understand Modern Art Is to Understand Jig-Saw Puzzles

By HAL BOYLE

San Francisco, April 29 — (AP)— Dreams come true in rare ways.

All his life Benny Bufano, a 49-year-old gnome-like artist who is one of San Francisco's best known characters, had dreamed a great dream. He wanted to create masterpiece of art that would help bring peace to the world.

Well, it's done now — an 18-ton, three-panel series of mosaics. And where does it hang — in the Metropolitan Museum of Art? No. It hangs in a new $500,000 cafeteria at the foot of Powell street, where tourists flock to ride the old-fashioned cable cars.

Benny originally wanted his opus to go to the United Nations. But the money to execute it — $35,000 to $40,000 — was advanced by David Moar, a former busboy who worked himself up to head of a multi-million dollar restaurant chain. So the artist is reconciled to the cafeteria setting here for his mosaic.

"People always patted me on the back, but never put the money on the line," he said. "Mr. Moar did."

The three mosaics carry out a theme of universal peace and racial unity. This is symbolized in the gigantic figure of a saintly child with four eyes and a face of three colors — white, black and yellow. This represents a blending of world races. And the child has a zipper in its robe.

"I chose the child as a symbol, because it is only through the innocence of childhood that we can gain the peace," said Benny.

"The zipper is to show it's a modern idea," volunteered Moar, who is beginning to understand the mosaic himself.

Bufano spent more than four months in St. Louis, New York, and Italy assembling the 16-foot-high panels.

"It's the biggest jig-saw puzzle you ever saw — 1,000,000 pieces of stone in it," said Moar, admiringly.

"There were 1,500,000 pieces I threw away," said Benny. "The others I threw away."

VA Criticized on Interpretation of Deadline

Hot Springs, Ark., April 29 — (AP)— The veterans administration's interpretation of the July 25, 1951 deadline for starting "GI" training was criticized here yesterday.

Oliver E. Meadows of Austin, Texas State Director of Vocational Training, told the National Association of State Approval Agencies that legislation merely prescribes that training must have been started by that date.

He said the VA has ruled that war veterans must be in "actual physical training" then and must continue without interruption thereafter to receive benefits. He said this interpretation was unwarranted.

The NASAA is composed of educational officials connected with the veterans training program. It is holding its third annual convention here.

Negotiators Trying to Settle Strike

By The Associated Press

Another all-night session by negotiators in the long and costly Chrysler strike failed to bring a settlement today but federal and state mediators reported "progress."

"We're going to keep on pounding until we reach a settlement," the mediators said after the lengthy session between representatives of Chrysler and the CIO United Auto Workers.

The all-night talks ended at 8 a. m. (EST). Another session was planned at this afternoon. The negotiators apparently still were deadlocked over non-economic issues. Neither side commented on the possibility of an agreement over the weekend that would end the 95-day strike of some 80,000 workers.

Federal mediators also were busy in other labor disputes. And one strike — after two days — was postponed.

In Washington, labor conciliators were assigned to confer with the Continental Baking company and spokesmen for 2,500 AFE Bakery workers who have threatened to strike next Tuesday for company-wide instead of local bargaining. The baking chain, one of the country's largest, has plants in 83 cities.

A federal mediator plans to meet with company and union officials in New York over the weekend to attempt settlement of the strike of 10,000 installation workers in the nation-wide telephone wage dispute. No comment was made after yesterday's discussion between representatives of the CIO Communication Workers Union and the Western Electric company of the Bell telephone system.

Mustard Gas Used to Treat Cancer

Washington, April 29 — (AP)— A new and apparently more effective method was announced today, using the "nitrogen mustard" one-time poison gas materials against human cancer.

"Remarkable" shrinkage of treated tumors and complete relief of pain in ten previously advanced cases were described by the American cancer society.

Seven of the ten have died, all responded to some extent to treatment. The shrinkage occurred, however, only in tumors correctly treated. Related, but untreated growths, were not diminished.

The new method enables doctors to concentrate virtually the full wallop of the nitrogen mustard against certain tumors.

Up to now, such chemicals have been injected into the veins of patients. Used that way, they had only limited usefulness, spread throughout the whole body with diluted effect.

Under the new method, the injected drug goes directly to cancer areas. Thus, it has shown an ability to pierce unresponsive to the other drug.

The scientists have been searching for some other technique which might make the new technique even more effective.

Election in Florida Eyed Closely

Miami, Fla., April 29 — A nation's eyes will focus on Tuesday as an expected Democratic nominee is named for the United States.

The May 2 Democratic primaries more than personify the factors which have made Florida's 1,000,000 eligible voters and the rest of the nation.

Distant Star

THE STORY: Falling in love and not being Cleopatra. Notion's idea when she became a story for the first time. She had heard them come in together, seen their good night.

When she climbed the stairs a few moments later, her teeth were pressed down so hard on her underlip that a spot of blood sprang.

Piers had not seen her—but he would have been more at peace if he could have forgotten her existence, rid himself of the consciousness of her, here in his house.

Flinging himself into a chair he filled a pipe, but it remained in his hand unlit.

What a fool he had been, he told himself. And now those two and the child were here. Why had he not found another way for Jon? Jon must always have been his responsibility, but Syrie alone, but he had been so determined that she should pay a little of what she owed. The result was that Jon hated him; and those two hated each other more than they would have done otherwise.

And now he had to think of Cleopatra, and keep her free of it all. Remembering the sweet, unafraid surrender of her in his arms, his heart leapt. His Love, to whom all his life belonged...

JUST as Cleopatra and Baba were finishing breakfast the next morning Loulie came in to tell her that the Sidi Amberley wished her to go down to him.

"Come, too!" Baba started to scramble off her chair, but Loulie laid a restraining hand on her.

"No, my flower. Just Miss Norton."

"I shan't be long, darling," promised Cleopatra. "Then I will take you to say good morning to Uncle Piers."

"All right," agreed Baba amiably.

Cleopatra was aware of Loulie's curious eyes and as she went out of the room, wondered how much missed the servant's quarters. She had awakened quite sure that she must have dreamed last night; but the dream seemed to be holding, and as she ran downstairs her heart was dancing.

The rain had ceased, and the signs were banished already under the sun's rays. As Cleopatra reached the hall a man came in through the door which stood open to the brilliant morning.

She gazed involuntarily with a sudden pang of dismay.

"Good morning," said Jon Amberley.

So he was back from wherever he had been. Somehow in that moment when filled with hope and love she was going to Piers, the sight of Jon seemed like a black shadow.

"Good morning," she answered. "Do you happen to know if my wife is back?" he asked.

"Yes. She returned last night." "Ah! I am sure she will forgive a late welcome."

There was something in the tone of the remark which made Cleopatra feel that it did not need a reply.

MAKING way for Jon to go upstairs she turned towards the breakfast room which was situated towards the back of the house. She had almost reached it when Piers came out, and seeing Cleopatra took a quick step in her direction.

"Hello, darling—I was just coming to look for you," he said. "I thought that we—"

He broke off, catching sight of his brother who, instead of going straight upstairs, had followed Cleopatra. Their eyes met over her head, and Jon's brows went up.

"Oh, you're back, Jon," said Piers coolly. He had taken Cleopatra's hand and was holding it in his, now he put an arm about her shoulders. "Back in time to congratulate me," he said. "Cleopatra and I are going to be married."

"What?" The question came from above with the sharpness of a revolver shot, and the three in the hall looked up to see Syrie standing at the top of the stairs.

variably fall into the wrong hands. Futile to try to throttle our fears and apprehensions by writing "burn this" at the bottom of an incriminating document. The recipient never does, and the man or woman who is the soul of honor, and out of whom a confidence could not be dragged with wild horses, will make common property of a letter and let husband or wife read it, or else drop it in a drawer and forget it, and leave it for any curious eye

Women Chief Offenders Women are the chief offenders among those who get drunk on ink and who never see a sheet of white paper without an iridescent splotch all over it. The consequence is so grievous when women become afflicted with the letterwriting mania that I often doubt the wisdom of teaching girls how to write at all. For it is the smallest number of girls who have enough self-restraint to write a letter to a man without slopping sentimental stuff that they can't mean.

Girls who are not the least in love with a man, and who wouldn't marry him on a bet, will write him the most impassioned letters, breathing vows of deathless devotion. If the man were face to face with them, they would never be brazen enough to say such things to him, even when there was nobody in earshot to bear witness that they had been so forward and shamelessly.

Another letter which should be written is the one in which one confides a secret to a friend, for by some ironic law of fate it in

Don't Write in Anger
And still another letter that should never be written is the one that is written in anger. All of us when we are provoked or offended at something that we love have done, say things to them which we do not really mean.

Even then our words hurt like the blows of a two-edged sword, but we are there to heal the wounds we have made with kisses, with caresses, with apologies, and to save our unkindness with some generosity. But what we write in anger is cold, hard, final, a bullet shot from a distance that pierces the heart and kills love before we can get it to render any first aid, and undo the harm we have done.

Above all, the letter that never should be written is the dark, pessimistic letter that simply dips with woe. All of us have correspondents whose letters we dread to open because we know that they will flatten us out with depression and break down our moral compass.

Why, I do not know, but many mothers seem incapable of writing any other sort of letter than those sordid missives to their children who are away from home. They begin with a jeremiad about how they miss dear John or Sally, and how lonely it is at home with all the children gone, and how the crops haven't been very good, and business has been bad at the store, and so on, and on, and if there is a pleasant thing that has happened in the community or if anybody is well and healthy, they never mention it.

And in reality there isn't a thing the matter with mother. She is happy and prosperous and glad her children are off, doing well in the world, and she never dreams that her waiting letters take the pep out of them, and that they have a never themselves to read them.

So there you are. And there is the problem of when and where and how to write, and whether it is better to be too handy with the pen, or to be afflicted with pen-paralysis.

Hot Springs Goes on Batting Spree

By The Associated Press
Pine Bluff had a nine-run inning, but it probably was Hot Springs which provided the most spectacular slugging in Cotton States competition last (Friday) night.

Pine Bluff racked up all nine of its scores in the first inning and then coasted along behind the three-bit pitching of Adam Stempkowski to down El Dorado, 9-2. The longest blow in the big inning was a triple.

Hot Springs waited until the seventh inning for its slugging show with Greenville as victim. With three men on, Fred Wasiluk knocked Bernard Krauss' offering over the fence. The four runs grew to a few minutes later after Greenville Manager Joe Rullo took over the mound from Krauss. Leo Grady got hold of one of Rullo's pitches for a second homer, scoring two men ahead of him. The final score: Hot Springs 11, Greenville 4.

The Pine Bluff and Hot Springs victories enabled the two teams to maintain their respective 1-2 positions in the current league standings.

Number three Greenwood also won, downing Natchez, 8-3. Apparently he would have won without it, but perhaps just to show he could, Greenwood Pitcher Charlie Rugg struck out all three men who faced him in the ninth inning. Previously he had fanned five others while allowing seven hits, including a 330-foot homer by Jim Gilbert.

Clarksdale relief hurler Quincy Franies balked with the bases loaded before making a pitch, forcing home the run which gave Monroe a 3-2 victory in the fourth game last night. George Lechr, whom Francis relieved, was the losing pitcher. Joe Francis was the winner. Hardie Nettles homered for Clarksdale in the sixth with nobody on.

Games tonight:
Hot Springs at El Dorado.
Pine Bluff at Greenville.
Clarksdale at Natchez.
Greenwood at Monroe.

Arkansas State Soundly Licks State Teachers

By The Associated Press
Arkansas State college poured it on Arkansas State Teachers Friday.

Arkansas State not only displaced the Teachers in first place in AIC baseball standings, but it also beat the Conway team by two points in a dual track meet.

The Indians took over the baseball loop's top spot with a 13-3 victory over the Teachers. It was the first conference loss for Teachers and left them in a second place with Arkansas Tech, each having won five and lost one. Arkansas State was alone on top with a 6-1 record, but Tex could remedy that with a win over College of the Ozarks, which it is scheduled to play Saturday night.

Lethander Jerry Dean held the Teachers to five hits while Arkansas State got 11 off Jaynes and Davis.

In the track meet Arkansas State won by 67 to 65.

Kenny Stephens of Teachers was individual high scorer with 10 points.

Both baseball game and track meet were held at Jonesboro.

In other AIC baseball Friday, Henderson's Joe Campbell pitched a three-hitter.

Meanwhile AIC golf and tennis meets opened at Little Rock. They were to be concluded Saturday.

FRANKFURT HOME AND BUSINESS IN RUINS—With his family quartered in a "home" fashioned from rubble, Anton Strack conducts a business in scrap iron on the sidewalk outside the dwelling in Frankfurt, Germany. the bases. Jack McClendon placed a perfect bunt down the first base line sending Bob White home on the hit, and two more came in as Colley threw into left field territory on a late wild throw to first. McClendon took third and the Legionnaires had their third league cin against a single loss.

Larry Singleton, who borked the first game between these two teams with a two out nine inning hit that scored the winning run, slammed a two run home run in the third over the left center field wall.

The next home game is with the El Dorado Oilers next Monday night in League Play.

Legionnaires Even Count With Springhill

Last night in Legion Field the Springhill Sports had the away-from-home jitters and committed three costly errors in the first two innings to give Hope an opening lead, that was never threatened and Charlie Gough coasted to his second Southwest League victory with a 10-3 six hit win over the Sports of Springhill La.

Charlie Gough was strong in the clutch most of the way but two timely double plays by his mates made things a little easier. Both twin killings snuffing out late inning rallies by the southern boys.

Springhill opened with the first run of the game in the top of off man, drew a base on balls, attempted to pick him off first and threw down the right field line he went to third. O. M. Talley sent a long fly to the outfield to score him.

Hope began quickly off Clyde Green, opening hurler for the Sports. Leroy Ridling walked and went to second on Gibson Ross' bunt single. Bob White came through with a long double down the right field lone scoring Ridling with the tying run and putting Ross on third. Buddy White followed with a line drive that fielder Couch almost made a shoe string catch on, but missed and it went for a double driving across Ross, with Bob White holding at third. Bob White scored on Harris' groundout and Buddy White took third.

In the second frame with one out Ridling took first on "a miss-throw" error by Courtney at first. Gibson Ross got on with a scratch single and Bob White followed with another sending in Ridling. Buddy White flied high to left but left fielder Talley dropped the ball allowing Gibson Ross to score on the two base error.

At this point manager Thigpin decided to let Green call it a night and called in lefty fireballer Terry Cooley from the bullpen. Bill Harris was struck by a pitched ball and that loaded up
